A WONDERFUL TRIBUTE

The World never before witnessed such honor and tribute paid to any living or dead as was paid the "Unknown Hero Dead" on Armistice Day. The proclamation by President Harding was responded to by over one hundred millions of Americans and the entire country stood still in prayer. In this city the observance was general and the program most appropriate. The G. A. R., the Spanish War, World War and American Legion members in their meetings gave voice to the call to end wars. In the churches of all denominations prayers and masses were said. The message of the Pope urging prayers by all Catholics for the success of the Conference, was read.

PRESIDENT THRILLS CONFEREES

ARMISTICE DAY MASS MEETING

Eloquent Addresses By Noted People--Resolutions Adopted and Sent to President Harding

A large and representative audience gathered at Freeman's Hall on Friday afternoon to attend the Armistice Day mass meeting when the theme, "The Limitation of Armament Conference at Washington, D. C.," was discussed by able speakers from different standpoints. It was a meeting that filled all with inspiration and the able messages of the speakers telling of the need of world peace made a deep impression on every person in the audience.

The program opened with a selection by an orchestra of six musicians led by Mr. Tasson, and with Miss Barbara Cardigan at the piano. The musical program was made up principally of patriotic selections. Rev. Alfred Gooding, pastor of the Unitarian church, made the invocation and prayed that peace would come to the world.

Mayor F. W. Hartford, who presided at the meeting, was the first speaker and told of the purpose of the gathering and the hope of lasting peace. He told of the type of young men America sent into the war and the hardships the war brought. He dwelt on the hope of the success of the Limitation of Armament Conference and that if there is a reduction of armament there will be a lessening of the great burden of taxation.

Following Mayor Hartford's address another selection was rendered by the orchestra, after which Walter L. Meloon, president of the Central Labor Union, spoke on "Labor and Armament."

Mr. Meloon said he represented the working men among the great common people of whom Abraham Lincoln said that God must have loved them he made so many of them. He referred to the millions of our boys going to war and of the many homes from which the boys went out, many of whom never came back. He told that seventy-three cents out of each dollar of the United States money goes for the cause of war, the great burden of taxation is felt keenly by the common people. He told of the hope of all that the conference will come to a favorable decision that in the end may come the beating of the sword into ploughshares and peace again reign throughout the world.

Mrs. Mary J. Wood, the next speaker, told something of the work of the President's Frank Words and Hopes Thrill the Members of Disarmament Conference --- Naval Program Presented by Sec. Hughes--Size of Navy of England, France, Japan and U. S. Named

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Nov. 12.—Gathered with the chosen representatives of nine nations about him, President Harding opened the Conference on Limitation of Armaments. He read his speech slowly and deliberately from small printed pages he held in the hollow of his left hand. With his right he punctuated strongly with driving gestures. The first applause came when the President declared that the Conference must have a "signal influence" on the fortunes of the world. There was more applause when he said war should be "outlawed," and the recovery of the world drawn into constructive channels. The President also said, "The United States welcomes you with unselfish hand. We harbor no fears, want no sordid ends to be served, we suspect no enemy, we apprehend no contention, are content with what we had."

The audience and some of the delegates came to their feet with applause when Mr. Harding said: "Less of Armament and none of war, and we want to work to that end." The President concluded at 10.53 o'clock.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Secretary Hughes in his opening address as the president of the Armament conference, presented America's plans for naval limitation. A national holiday in which all building programs should be abandoned and the older ships of the present navy scrapped, was the keynote of the American plan.

First—That the capital ship building program either actual or planned, should be abandoned.

Second—That further reduction should be made through the scrapping of certain of the older ships.

Third—That a general reduction should be had to the existing naval strength of the powers concerned. That the capital ship tonnage should be used to measure the strength of the navy.

Fourth—That the United States should scrap all capital ships under construction, fifteen in number and fifteen of the older battleships.

Great Britain would stop construction on her four new ships of the Hood type and scrap the second and first line battleships up to the King George V. Japan would abandon her plan for two battleships and four battle cruisers not yet laid down and in addition three capital and four battle cruisers in process of construction, and ten of the pre-dreadnaughts and battleships and two Baers.

As a replacement program the American Government proposes that no more ships be laid down for the next ten years, and that a maximum replacement tonnage figure be fixed eventually for 500,000 tons for the United States, 500,000 tons for Great Britain and 300,000 tons for Japan. A proviso also would be included replacing the capital ships when twenty years old, and that such ships should not have a tonnage of more than 35,000.

Under this plan there would be immediate destruction in the navies of the three powers of sixty-six capital fighting ships, built and building, with a total tonnage of 1,878,043. It is proposed that it should be agreed by the United States, Great Britain and Japan with respect to capital ships within three months after making the agreement. The destruction of the United States ships would be eighteen, for Great Britain 22 and for Japan 10. The tonnage of these ships would be as follows: Of the United States, 500,650; Great Britain, 604,450; Japan, 299,500.

With respect to replacement the United States made their following plans: First, that it be agreed that the representative tonnage should not be laid down until ten years from date of agreement. Second, that replacement be limited by agreement and the maximum United States be 500,000 tons; for Japan of capital ships tonnage for the Great Britain 500,000 tons and for Japan 300,00 tons. Third, that subject to the ten-year limitation above fixed the maximum standard capital ships may be replaced when twenty years old by new capital ships. Fourth, that no capital ship can be built with a tonnage of more than 35,000 tons.

There was quite a round of applause when Mr. Hughes finished his speech.

John W. Garrett of Baltimore, Md., former minister to the Netherlands, was unanimously elected secretary-general, at the suggestion of Mr. Hughes, also at the chairman's suggestion it was agreed that the head of each delegation should comprise a committee on the program for the Conference.

Arthur J. Balfour nominated Secretary Hughes for chairman of the Armament Conference and he was acclaimed by the Conference as permanent for the session. The Conference on Limitation of Armaments then adjourned at 12.22 until Tuesday, November 15, at 11 a. m.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Mr. Secretary and members of the conference, ladies and gentlemen: It is a great and happy privilege to bid the delegates to this conference a cordial welcome to the capital of the United States of America. It is not only a satisfaction to greet you because we were lately participants in a common cause, in which shared sacrifices and sorrows and triumphs brought our nations more closely together, but it is gratifying to address you as the spokesman for nations whose conclusions and attending actions have so much to do with the weal or woe of all mankind.

It is not possible to over-appraise the importance of such a conference. It is not unseemly boast, no disparagement of other nations which, though not represented, are held in highest respect, to declare that the conclusions of this body will have a signal influence on all human progress—on the fortunes of the world.

Here is a meeting, I can well believe, which is in earnest of the awakened conscience of 20th century civilizations. It is not a convention of romance, nor a session of sorrow. It is not the conference of victors to define terms of settlement. Nor is it a council of nations seeking to remake human kind. It is rather a coming together, from all parts of the earth, to apply the better attributes of mankind to minimize the faults in our international relationships.

Speaking as official sponsor for the invitation, I think I may say the call is not of the United States of America alone. It is rather the spoken word of a war-wearied world, struggling for restoration, hungering and thirsting for better relationship; of humanity crying for relief and craving assurances of lasting peace.

It is easy to understand this world-wide aspiration. The glory of triumph, the rejoicing in achievement, the love of liberty, the devotion to country, the pangs of sorrow, the burdens of debt, the desolation of ruin, all these are sprinkled alike in all lands. Here in the United States we are but freshly turned from the burial of an unknown American soldier, when a nation bowed while paying him tribute. Whether it was spoken or not, a hundred millions of our people were summarizing the inexcusable cause, the inexplicable cost, the unspeakable sacrifices, and the unutterable sorrows, and there was the ever impelling question: How can humanity justify or God forgive? Human fate demands no such toll; ambition and greed must be denied it. If misunderstanding must take the blame, then let us banish it, and let understanding rule and make good will reign everywhere. All of us demand liberty and justice. There can not be one without the other, and they must be held the unquestioned possession of all peoples. Inherent rights are of God, and the tragedies of the world originate in their attempted denial. The world today is infringing their enjoyment by arming to defend or deny, when simple sanity calls for their recognition through common understanding.

Out of the cataclysm of the world war came new fellowships, new convictions, new aspirations. It is ours to make the most of them. A world staggering with debt needs its burden lifted. Humanity which has been shocked by wanton destruction would minimize the agencies of that destruction. Contemplating them ensureless cost of war and the continuing burden of armament, all thoughtful peoples wish for real limitation of armament and would like war outlawed. In sobered reflection the world's hundreds of millions who pay in peace and die in war wish their statesmen to turn the expenditures for destruction into means for construction, aimed at a higher state for those who live and follow after.

It is not alone that the world can not readjust itself and cast aside the excess burdens without relief from the leaders of men. War has grown progressively cruel and more destructive from the first recorded conflict to this pregnant day, and the reverse order would more become our boasted civilization.

Gentlemen of the conference, the United States welcomes you with unselfish hands. We harbor no fears; we have no sordid ends to serve; we suspect no enemy; we contemplate or apprehend no conquest. Content with what we have, we seek nothing which is another's. We only wish to do with you that finer, nobler thing which no nation can do alone.

We wish to sit with you at the table of international understanding and good will. In good conscience we are eager to meet you frankly, and invite and offer cooperation. The world desolating order and the realization that mends a sober contemplation of the there can be no cure without sacrifice, not by one of us, but by all of us.

I do not mean surrendered rights, or narrowed freedom, or denied aspirations, or ignored national necessities. Our republic would no more ask for these than it would give. No pride need be humbled, no nationality submerged, but I would have a emergence of minds committing all of us to less preparation for war and more enjoyment of fortunate peace.

This higher hopes come of the spirit of our coming together. It is but just to recognize varying needs and peculiar positions. Nothing can be accomplished in disregard of national apprehensions. Rather, we should get together to remove the causes of apprehensions. This is not to be done in intrigue. Greater assurance is found in the exchange of simple honesty and directness, among men resolved to accomplish as becomes leaders among nations, when civilization itself has come to its crucial test.

It is not to be challenged that government fails when the excess of the cost robs the people of the way to happiness and the opportunity to achieve. If the finer sentiments were not urging, the cold, hard facts of excessive cost and the eloquence of economies would urge to reduce our armaments. If the concept of a better order does not appeal, then let us ponder the burden and the blight of continued competition.

It is not to be denied that the world has swung along throughout the ages without heeding this call from the kindlier hearts of men. But the same world never before was so tragically brought to realization of the bitter futility of passion's sway when reason and patience and fellowship point a nobler way.

I can speak officially only for our United States. Our hundred millions frankly want less of armament and none of war. Wholly free from guile, sure in our own minds that we harbor no unworthy designs, we accredit the world with the same good intent. So I welcome you, not alone in good will and high purpose, but with high faith.

We are met for a service to mankind. In all simplicity, in all honesty and all honor, there may be written here the avowals of a world conference refined by the consuming fire of war, and made more sensitive by the anxious aftermath. I hope for that understanding which will emphasize the guarantees of peace and for commitments to less burdens and a better order which will tranquilize the world. In such an accomplishment there will be added glory to your flags and ours, and the rejoicing of mankind will mark the transcending music of all succeeding time.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

A name may mean nothing—or it may mean everything.

A meal is a meal, whether it be served on the crockery of a beanery or the delicate Sevres of the pretentious hostelry.

Tea is tea, whether it be a flavorless apology or the world's finest.

What have you said when you say "tea"? Nothing! Qualify it by the addition of one word—LIPTON'S—and you've said everything—purity, strength, quality, aroma and deliciousness.

Because LIPTON'S means everything in tea, it enjoys the largest sale in the world.

Ask your grocer for Lipton's Yellow Label Tea. If he does not sell it, send us his name and address and we will mail you a FREE sample and give you the name of a grocer who can supply you.

SCHOOL DENTAL CLINIC DOING SPLENDID WORK

The dental clinic of the High school which was opened this week, gives every indication of being one of the greatest aids to children's health that has yet been established. Last Spring Superintendent Slayton through the cooperation of the Portsmouth Dental society was able to have the teeth of all of the school children examined and charted and the result of these examinations were made known to the parents and in a great many cases the parents had the children's teeth attended to. There were, however, many who on account of the hard times and large families were unable to meet dental bills.

During the summer and fall a room in the high school was fitted up and the equipment purchased from the late Dr. Hinman estate was installed. Again the Dental society came to the rescue and the different dentists now give so many afternoons a month to the work, and the teeth of all children whose parents are unable to meet the expense are being treated and the children taught to take care of their teeth. It is a splendid work and the local dentists are entitled to a great deal of credit for their fine spirit of co-operation.

RAILROAD MAN TAKES A BRIDE

Francis J. Donohue, a well known passenger trainman on the Boston & Maine, who formerly ran between this city and Boston, was married on Wednesday at Newburyport. The bride was Miss Katherine T. Healey also employed by the B. & M. railroad as stenographer. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Ryan. They were attended by Sylvester D. Healey as best man and Miss Mary A. Donohue as bridesmaid. A reception to the immediate families of the contracting parties was held at the home of the bride's father, Patrick Healey, 36 Boardman street, and Mr. and Mrs. Donohue left on an evening train for a bridal tour, which will take them to Buffalo, N. Y., and Chicago, Ill.

They were liberally remembered with costly gifts from their friends.

The Swarming Instinct.

In Paris a moving sidewalk has been suggested as the solution of the traffic problem in a highly congested shopping district. Just how this thing could be worked out is not entirely clear. It seems as if there would be as many people in the streets as ever, if not more, if one could be taken from one part of a city to another by stepping on to a moving sidewalk and taking it easy until ready to step off. If memory is not at fault something of the kind has been suggested in this country, either seriously or in a joking way, but so far as known, there are no moving sidewalks in any American city.

A prominent newspaper in commenting on the Paris proposal says it is as applicable to American cities as to Paris, and that "some better method of separating street and pedestrian traffic in shopping districts must be devised eventually."

The discussion may well give rise to the query, why does so large a part of the population desire to live in congested cities, with all the elbowing and crowding which are there unavoidable, instead of living where there is plenty of room—where it is possible to "live and let live?" It is a question that has never been answered, and one that it seems impossible to answer except on the theory, or perhaps it would be more accurate to say the demonstrated fact, that it is as natural for the human family to "congest" as it is for fish to swim in "schools" or for ants to live in crowded heaps of sand.

That the large cities have many advantages to offer is not to be denied, but to the person who is capable of enjoying, and has enjoyed, what is commonly known as "elbow room," these advantages are largely offset by the crowding, the jamming and the sense of near suffocation which are inseparable from life in the great centers of population. In these centers the great majority of families lack the necessary room in their homes. They are crowded there, and when they go forth to their daily work or for pleasure they are crowded and jostled from the time they leave their doors until they return. They live in a sweltering jam from year's end to year's end, practically forgetting, if they ever knew, that there are such things as green fields, babbling streams and sheltering trees all about these great hives of humanity, offering their charms freely to all comers. And still the slaves to the mob instinct cling to their city surroundings, uninviting and repellant as they are in many sections, as if their very lives depended upon their staying there.

It is one of those puzzles that seem beyond solution. Many rural sections of this country today are suffering from the lack of needed population, while the crowded cities are growing by leaps and bounds. There seems to be something in their very bigness that attracts. Country boys and girls by the thousands are rushing to them filled with ambitions which in many, if not most, cases are never fulfilled, throwing their lives into the great maelstrom and bidding farewell forever to the peaceful scenes of their early days and the comforts of life where there is room enough to turn around without stepping on some one's toes or being notified by some gruff policeman to "move on!"

Why this is so is not easy to tell. The significant fact is that it is so, and if the tendency continues the time will come when it will take something more than moving sidewalks to bring relief to the swarming hordes who prefer crowding to at least a reasonable degree of elbow room.

When it is necessary to throw strong guards around jails and court houses in a state like Massachusetts in connection with the question of a new trial for convicted murderers it shows that the country is not as free from "Redism" as could be desired. The authorities having this more or less celebrated case in charge will make a fatal mistake if they do not show backbone, and plenty of it.

The State Public Utilities Commission of Connecticut has ordered one street railway company to reduce its fare from ten cents to five for a period of ninety days as an experiment, believing that it may increase business enough to more than make up for the difference in fare. May the experiment succeed and the example be followed in other cities.

Commissioner Haynes says Congress will be asked for an appropriation of ten million dollars to carry on the enforcement of prohibition the coming year, this being an increase of $2,500,000. It seems to some that after more than two years of prohibition any shading in the expense account ought to be in a different direction.

Some of the brewers have already received their permits to manufacture and sell medicinal beer, and more are to follow. Just how much of a break in the droughth this latest step is to make remains to be seen, but it is reasonable to expect that there will be some "cures."

The Salvation Army insists that "A man may be down, but he's never out." However, it might be difficult for the ex-Kaiser, former Emperor Charles and certain other former Old World dignitaries to accept the contention without questioning.

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin of Massachusetts refers to sufferers from automobile accidents as "victims of speed, rum and carelessness." And no one has yet arisen to criticize his phraseology.

women in the war and spoke from the women's point of it whether Washington votes for a continuance or a limitation of armament. She told of the patriotic endeavor of women during the war, who not only gave their sons, but enlisted for service in the Red Cross, sold Liberty Loans, knit, conserved food and did all sorts of things in the line of service. The fine young men who went to war would have been home enriching the life of their community had the war not come. We followed them in our prayers to France where they met other of fine young men. They learned the horrors of warfare and many never came back. Mrs. Wood told that while we promised our boys there should be no more war, time has passed and there is no guarantee of lasting peace. That unknown dead soldier honored today by our country typifies the strength, youth and vitality of the hope of the home. Mrs. Wood ended by saying we seem to hear the women of other countries ask that America make good her promise and not break faith with those who died in the great cause.

A patriotic selection by the orchestra followed, after which Hon. Robert P. Bass, ex-governor of New Hampshire gave a stirring address on the question of Limitation of Armament, which was listened to with much interest. He spoke in part as follows:

"As we gather here today to commemorate the end of the most stupendous war, and most far-reaching victory of all time, let us begin by paying our tribute to those men who sacrificed their lives with utter devotion to a great cause. Let us solemnly resolve that those who were injured or maimed, shall receive every consideration and assistance which a grateful country, or which we as individuals citizens can render them.

"But merely to voice our appreciation of the courage, the devotion and the high ideals of those who made these sacrifices to preserve democracy and to crush military imperialism, is not enough, nor will mere words of praise for those who are gone, satisfy us today. We want to do our part toward completing the task those men so well began.

"We are living in a time of such vast and rapid changes that it is hard to realize their extent, their effect, or the speed with which they occur.

"The way in which the necessaries of life and in fact all wealth, is produced, has recently been revolutionized by new inventions and processes. International commerce has been developed to an extent never before conceived of. In exerting our very living we are affected by economic conditions in other countries. All these things are so familiar to us that we have perhaps not fully grasp d their significance and effect.

"These changes have brought about corresponding changes in warfare. We now know that a war between big industrial nations will result in the nature of things become world wide. The industrial and commercial world is so organized that you cannot upset one part of it without vitally affecting the others.

"If we turn from the universal character of war as it has now developed, to its effects, we begin to get some conception of the tremendous importance and magnitude of the problem. It is now estimated that from 9 to 12 million men were killed in battle or died from wounds. Thirty million non-combatants are dead who would have been living but for this war. The direct and indirect cost of the war in money is estimated at 337 billion dollars.

"The last war cost about eight times as much as all the wars combined which occurred between 1790 and 1910. During 1918 it cost ten million dollars every hour, or two hundred and forty million dollars a day. With one day's war expenditure we could build in each of our 48 states two hospitals costing $500,000 each, two high schools costing $1,000,000 each and 300 recreation centers with gymnasiums and swimming pools. These are some of the things the civilized nations of the world are denying themselves by indulging in a single day's warfare. In 1920 with our army disbanded, and with our cruisers on a peace footing, we spent about 34 per cent of our National budget in paying for past and preparing for future wars.

"Even now, three years after war had ceased, the economic disorganization and deterioration continues to spread in Europe. It is at present the most disastrous in those countries which met defeat.

"But even in such countries as France, and Italy which tasted the fruits of victory, we have only begun to understand how lasting the burden of this war will be.

"The fact is that the industrial and commercial system no longer functions properly. We don't yet realize how much it is going to cost, or how long it will take, to get things into running order once more, for no remedy has yet been found. These are some of the fruits of victory which have not yet been measured or fully appreciated.

"If we are to profit from the costly experience of this great war, if we are to contribute substantially to the consummation of that high purpose with which our boys went to France, there are a few unquestioned truths which we must hold clearly in mind. First, that the organization of modern society has so developed that nations are economically interdependent. We cannot prosper while other great nations suffer.

"War has changed in a similar way. One group of nations cannot upset the daily business of other countries without vitally affecting us. This is why any serious war of the future is likely to be a world war in which we are bound to play a leading part.

"The losses in this war in lives, in property destroyed, in reduced productive power and in lowered standards of all kinds, is likely to retard civilization for the better part of a century.

"This war has as yet removed none of the fundamental causes which are likely to lead to future wars and if another war must come, it will probably be far more disastrous and deadly both in combatants and non-combatants than the last.

"What can we do to avert such a calamity or to lessen the number, the frequency, and extent of wars?

"First of all we can give our whole hearted support to the efforts which will be made at the Disarmament Conference to limit and gradually reduce the trades and navies of all nations. Neither we, nor any other great nation, can act alone in this matter. To place one's self in a defenseless and helpless position, which one's neighbors are known to be, teeth would be both foolish and useless. But we can take the lead, we can meet our neighbors fully half way. We can act in such a manner as to merit their confidence and trust. Then we can insist in common that this scandal race for armaments must stop.

"As individual citizens and as groups, we can help create and give expression to a public sentiment in support of such a policy. We can show an appreciation of the action of those men who have led the way in this movement.

"That this problem of reducing wars is enormously difficult one. Armaments are not the only causes of war. To accomplish our purpose we must eliminate other sources of international jealousies, friction and strife. Secret diplomacy is at all times bad. But when it is used to advance special commercial interests it is sure to cause trouble and danger of war either on a small or large scale.

"Exclusive financial concessions in foreign countries represent a principle and a danger which no democratic self-governing people can afford to countenance.

"Spheres of influence in half-civilized countries are commonly seized by great nations under the guns of their cruisers, in order to gain exclusive trade, mining or other privileges. This commercialized piracy must cease if we really wish to live on a basis of peace and good will with other peoples. Unless these things are stopped, they will be the cause of future wars, just as they have led to past wars. They helped substantially to start the last war and served as a motive for spreading it to all parts of the world.

"This type of commercial imperialism needs a big armament, both to carry through its plans and to protect itself from retaliation. Consequently it frowns upon disarmament and looks askance at international cooperation. For an international democracy would hardly countenance such monopolies, exclusive concessions, or oppressive control of weaker people.

"We need a new code or set of principles which shall henceforth guide and control international relations. These should protect and guard the legitimate rights of the weak and the strong nations alike. Issues between countries should hereafter be decided on the basis of these principles rather than by the strength of armies and navies. If this could be actually accomplished the very reason and motive for building armaments would gradually disappear.

"For the purpose of drafting and administering such an international bill of rights we must ultimately have some permanent tribunal, clothed with the consent and approval of all civilized nations. Its members should be directly responsible to the people whom they represent, its action open and public. Let Democracy be its guiding principle and the Brotherhood of Man its ultimate aim.

"If we want the world to be ever a better world for our children to live in, if we want our institutions and our type of civilization and culture to endure, these are the things we should strive to bring about.

"We Americans may well be proud that the world's first Disarmament Conference is to meet at our National Capital, called by our President. Let us remember that its chances of accomplishing some permanent good, depend largely upon the generous and insistent support which it receives from the mass of the people."

Rev. Isaac Higginbotham, pastor of the Middle Street Church, gave the closing address, "The Church and Armaments." It was an eloquent appeal that men have the peace of God in their hearts. If the nations are governed by Christian principles then we may hope for lasting peace. He spoke in part as follows:

"You have listened to these pleas for the limitation of oppressive armaments from the point of view of the working man, the home, and the public at large. The church irrespective of its name or sign stands squarely behind all of these appeals, for we too are opposed to waste in a world of need and suffering, we too are against the needless sacrifices of young manhood and the resultant lowering of the physical and spiritual stamina of the race; our sympathies are entirely with the home, with the women and children who pay the real cost of war. We too stand with the public in its demand that the larger welfare of the public and of humanity calls for constructive rather than destructive measures.

"But the religious forces of the nation, Catholic, Jewish and Protestant, unite in their firm conviction that there is something even deeper at stake. The issue before the world is not simply economic, financial, or physical. At heart the issue is a spiritual one.

"One of the tragedies of the early days of the war was the silence and apparent impotence of organized religion. If Christianity and Judaism had spoken out in all countries concerned, something might have been done even then to avert that titanic struggle. But if we missed a golden opportunity then, the prophetic voice of the church has been sending out its call in stirring tones during the last few months, specifically for the spirit of peace and the cessation of competitive armaments. The former Chief of Staff, General Tasker H. Bliss, declared, 'The responsibility is entirely upon the professing Christians of the United States. If another war like the last should come, they will be responsible for every drop of blood that will be shed and for every challenge, coming not from church color wastefully expended.' With such officials, but from a military man, we cannot sit back and say 'This is a problem for experts, for statesmen and cabinets.' We have followed their wishes and beckonings long enough. Let us now follow God; let us follow the Prince of Peace.

"I believe that the churches are behind this conference with heart and soul. In fact through all the ages the spirit of the Prince of Peace has kept the hope of peace alive in the heart of humanity. Granted that the church has been guilty of forgetting war is sinful, that we have forgotten those words, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself,' 'Love thy enemies,' and 'Love one another,' and that we have even had religious wars. Nevertheless the inner light has never wholly gone out, the spirit of peace and love has never wholly vanished, there have always been those great souls in all ages who were true to the Prince of Peace.

"It is not that the church is pacifist in the common interpretation of that word. We are not crying, 'Peace, peace, when there is no peace.' In the war we were called upon by the governments to interpret the moral and spiritual ideals of our cause. We did it, and more; we gave of the best of our young men, we bore our share of the burden. But now we call upon the governments to redeem their pledges which they made to us when they called to us in the hour of need, yea, in the hour of desperation and disaster. In answer to our prayer God turned the tide, and we became more than conquerors through Him that loved us. Of that there is no doubt, for Foch, Haig and Pershing unite in saying that there were times when God and the forces of heaven turned the scales. Today millions of Christians and Jews are calling upon the governments to prove the sincerity of their words, that this last war was one to end war, and that after it the nations would move toward disarmament. The church has dealt fairly with the nations; let the nations deal fairly with the church.

"There is another kind of disarmament needed. The most deadly armaments that nations have erected are these: distrust, jealousy, hatred, suspicion, prejudice, racial pride, and sinful ambition and greed. There can be no peace until man and nations have the peace of God in their hearts. The conference at Washington will fail and its results be worth less than the paper on which they are written, unless first of all the nations disarm their hearts of all evil thoughts against other nations.

"We can have peace, if we are willing to pay the price in spiritual sacrifice, in national humility, in service for humanity. As Marshal Foch said at Chicago the other day, 'Peace—we shall have it soon on the same condition that we got war. We must fight for it in the moral sphere as we did in the physical sphere. Peace has been produced from the first night of Christianity only to men of good will. Good-will must be in the bottom of the heart; without it, it is only a sham peace.'

"It is for America to take the lead, unselfishly, nobly, and even to the point of sacrifice, in generous proposals looking toward far-reaching reductions in armaments. Years ago at a great banquet some American statesman said, 'America and England can lick the world,' but one of our great bishops said in answer, 'America and England can save the world.'

"If the nations dare to apply the principles of the Sermon on the Mount, the teachings of the Golden Rule, in solving the great problems before them, if they will work in spiritual co-operation rather than in competition in developing war machines, if they will recognize the brotherhood of the whole human race, and treat all races with equality and justice, then we shall have peace and willing disarmament.

"But even if that conference should fail, God's promise will not fail. Slowly but surely the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ. Then Isaiah's prophecy will come true. 'And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore.'"

"Whereas, the conference on the Limitation of Armament will, upon the invitation of our government, convene at Washington, D. C., on the 12th day of November, 1921, be it

"Resolved, That it is the profound conviction of the citizens of the city of Portsmouth, N. H., and its vicinity, in mass meeting assembled that the time has arrived when civilization can and must shake off the terrible burden of armaments that now oppresses the world; that it must turn from war to peace; from destruction to upbuilding. That we do not propose that America alone disarm, which would be folly and endanger all democratic civilization, but that we do believe that Democracy has proven itself and has made international peace possible; that we expect and demand that the conference recognize that fact; that our representatives at the conference insist upon the largest material measure of disarmament that can be secured by international agreement; that the conference is charged to find and proclaim that agreement and to remain in session until that work is accomplished to the fullest degree. Be it further

"Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be forwarded as a memorial to the President, to the Secretary of State, and to each of the American delegates to the Conference on the Limitation of Armaments, and to the secretary of the delegation representing each foreign nation invited to participate in the conference, as expressing the profound bourition of those here assembled."

The meeting closed with the singing of "America" by the entire gathering.

TIGERS DEFEAT THE MARINES IN FAST GAME

The Tigers defeated the Marines in a hard fought and well played game on Friday afternoon at the playgrounds. The grounds were in very bad condition owing to the recent snow and it made the ball hard to handle.

Fumbles were in evidence but considering the weather conditions they were excusable.

The work of Wiggin, the former Bates star, at quarter, was a feature and the entire backfield of the Tigers, P. J. Connors, Pilgrim and Hanscom, played fine football. G. Miller and Cooper starred for the Marines.

The summary:

UNION SERVICE OF THE CHURCHES

The union service of intercession at the North Congregational church Friday evening was of a most solemn and reverential character and the large congregation attending represented members of different church denominations of the city and many from the suburbs.

The service opened at seven-thirty o'clock with selections on the organ with opportunity for the people to gather for prayer and meditation. Rev. Isaac Higginbotham, pastor of the Middle Street Baptist church, gave the invocation, followed by a hymn by the congregation. Rev. Alfred Gooding, pastor of the Methodist church, led the responsive reading. The anthem, "Peace I Give Unto You," was rendered by Mr. Mitchell. Rev. Dr. Lucius H. Pollmister gave the scripture reading from Micah 6:1-8 and Psalm 46.

Rev. Dr. E. S. Tasker, pastor of the Methodist church, gave the devotional address, his subject being "God Exalted Among the Nations." He spoke in part as follows:

This 46th Psalm is supposed to have been written in commemoration of Israel's deliverance from threatened destruction. It is a fine expression of confidence in God, and is well suited to express the feelings of men in times of national distress. It naturally divides into three stanzas, the first of which expresses trembling times. Victorious figures of speech, the shaking of the mountains, and the foaming of the restless sea, suggest the disturbed conditions in which the world is today. Mars has strode over the world and his sword is dripping with the blood of humanity. And in his trail have come famine, and pestilence, revolution and death, until it seems as if the very foundations of civilization were giving way. Many men have lost faith and settled into hopeless despair. They have forgotten the triumphant note of this psalm.

In the second stanza of this psalm comes a contrasted figure that reveals a remarkable transformation. In place of the restless, foaming sea is seen the calm, majestic river that makes glad the city of God. It reminds us of the vision of Ezekiel, of the stream that flowed from under the altar of God, widening and deepening as it flows through the land, carrying fertility and gladness in its course. It reminds us of John's vision of the river of water of life, on whose banks stood the tree of life, and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. These and other figures frequently expressed by prophets and apostles, point to a golden age to come in the future. And humanity clings to such an ideal and the hope never completely dies out of the human breast.

The last stanza of the psalm expresses God's power in transforming the unrighteous conditions of earth into the peace and prosperity of a better age. "He maketh wars to cease. He breaketh the bow and cutteth the spear in sunder." Our expanding idea of God leads us to believe that He can bring to nought even the gigantic engines of modern warfare. God is the sovereign of this world and is Master of the affairs of men.

But men too often forget God in their international relationships—they neglect His principles, hence hatred and suspicion result, and wars follow in their train. We are now suffering the natural consequences of our disregard of God in the affairs of the nations.

The call of the psalmist comes to us "Be still and know that I am God." Stop and listen to Him. We did it this week in response to the appeal of our President. There are some hopeful signs that our nation is coming to a new recognition of God in public affairs.

The proclamation of our Governor asking for prayer on Armistice day—the call of the President of the United States, the program of services at Arlington in honor of the Unknown dead was full of religious sentiment and dependence on God, and finally the coming Conference in Washington will be opened with prayer.

America has now a wonderful opportunity to exalt God among the nations. They are looking to us for leadership into a new and better international life. It is ours, in the spirit of humility, for our own sins and shortcomings in the past, yet to lead the other nations up to the throne of the living God where we may find the wisdom and guidance we need in the present crisis.

During a period of stress in the war the people of Brussels gathered in the Cathedral of St. Gudule for comfort and help. Their beloved Cardinal Mercier, clad in the scarlet robes of his office, mounted his pulpit. And as the sea of faces turned upward to him, he poured into their hearts his own fearless spirit of faith and devotion.

So today our whole nation needs to stand in the presence of the heroic figure of Christ, robed in the garments made scarlet by His own sacrificial blood, and as we look at Him catch courage and faith to exalt our God among the nations of the earth and lead them and ourselves to yield to His wisdom and authority.

Prayers by Rev. Lucius H. Thayer, pastor of the North church, Rev. Mr. Perkins, pastor of the Advent Christian church, Rev. Dr. Pollmister and others, and the singing of hymns followed. Miss Adah M. Wilson presided at the organ. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Isaac Higginbotham, and at its close the congregation remained seated for several minutes for silent prayer, until the first notes of the organ postlude were sounded.

ANNUAL BANQUET AT Y. M. C. A.

Fathers and Sons Enjoy an Evening Together.

The annual Father and Son banquet at the Y. M. C. A. was held Friday evening and proved a most successful affair and largely attended. The banquet was served at 6.30 in Association hall, which was handsomely decorated with flags and crepe paper streamers. The catering was in charge of Haywood I. Burton and the arrangements of the banquet in charge of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A.

The tables looked most attractive with their decorations of small potted ferns and bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums and the following fine menu was enjoyed by the utmost: Soup, rolls, celery, roast native chicken, dressing, brown gravy, mashed potatoes, squash, cranberry sauce, coffee, ice cream, cake.

During the serving the Association orchestra rendered lively selections and community singing was enjoyed, this being led by R. Curtis Matthews.

The program of the evening was as follows: Toastmaster, Rev. Isaac Higginbotham; Welcome, President Edward L. Paterson; Dad and I, Walter Harvey; Son and I, Fred P. Tucker; Greetings from the State Office, E. P. Conlon, State Secretary for Boys' Work; The Boy and the Community, Mayor P. W. Hartford; America.

The speakers sat at a table on the stage and the toast master, Rev. Isaac Higginbotham introduced each in turn. The first speaker, President Edward L. Paterson, of the Association, expressed pleasure at seeing so many of the fathers present and urged them to come often and learn more about the Y. M. C. A. He referred in a hopeful way of the future of the organization.

Mayor P. W. Hartford, who spoke on "The Boy and the Community," told of being well acquainted with the boys of the city, having been closely identified with them, and of the boys of a community being a great asset. He told the boys that they were living in a community that is doing much for them and they should learn to realize that and develop a community spirit; that they should be of service to their city and never while at play do a thing which would destroy or damage property as is sometimes done by boys on Hallowe'en night and at other times.

Walter L. Harvey spoke on "Dad and I." In behalf of the boys and told what a father should be from the boy's standpoint. Fred C. Tucker gave a talk on "Son and I," and told what he hoped for the boy.

M. J. Burns, secretary of the Industrial department of the Massachusetts State Commission, who was to have been present, was unable to attend. E. P. Conlon of Concord, state secretary of Boys' Work, brought greetings from the state office and told of the progress of boys' work in the state. He told just as farms in New Hampshire be conserved that child life is today better than before the war, and told facts concerning his work with the boys of the state. He ended with a hope that the conference at Washington would bring about a better understanding between the nations that a lasting peace may come.

Charles E. F. Cunningham, the new secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who arrived last week, was next introduced to the gathering and he gave a short talk on the Y. M. C. A. and the activities of the coming season. The program closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," and then all joined in the singing of "America." The remainder of the time was passed with games and stunts in the gymnasium.

The Woman's Auxiliary members in charge of the banquet were Mrs. Charles B. Walker and Mrs. Charles H. Walker in general charge, assisted by Mrs. Wiley, Mrs. Horace B. Frye, Mrs. Manning Akerman, Mrs. John Yarwood, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, Mrs. Robert J. Boyd, Mrs. Frank J. Chrisford, Mrs. R. Clyde Margeson, Mrs. Craig, Mrs. Frank Butler and Mrs. Henley.

The third annual Armistice ball under the auspices of the Frank E. Booma Post, No. 6, was held on Friday evening at Freeman's ball room and it was in every way a great social success. There was a fine attendance and it was a very enjoyable party.

There was an informal reception to the special guests, Mayor F. W. Hartford, Captain Irwin, U. S. N., the Commandant of the navy yard, who was accompanied by his aide, Captain Horn, and Lieut. Jolles, U. S. A. commanding the forces at the forts.

The Kappa Sigma orchestra of New Hampshire college furnished a splendid concert program and played for the dancing. The grand march was started at ten o'clock and this was led by Commander Edward J. Weeks, Jr. and Mrs. Nelson B. Wright, followed by Mayor F. W. Hartford and Miss Weeks, the officers of the Frank E. Booma Post and 165 couples. NAVY YARD NOTES

Another Slash at Newport

The department has ordered a further reduction in the personnel of the Newport Station and this time the force will be reduced to 100 men. The order comes as a big surprise as it was not thought that the personnel of the station would ever go below 220 men, the fewest number of men, according to the officers, who were needed to see that the extensive naval plant received sufficient police and fire protection, even though the apprentices have all been transferred to Hampton Roads.

Practically all activities at the station will now have to be transferred to the Constellation, the old frigate which was used for training purposes. The fire department may now have to run with one piece of apparatus instead of four, while the commissary has been so depleted that it is being operated with other departments abolished.

To Work Full Week

Next week all yard employes will work a full day on Saturday. This arrangement is understood to be made in order that the yard which will be closed to work on Thanksgiving day, will not be required to open for Friday following. By working a full week next week the employes will loaf from Nov. 23 to Nov. 28.

To Lay Keel Wednesday

The keel of Submarine V-3 will be laid in the Franklin shiphouse at 11.15 a. m. Wednesday next. The riveting gang will be: Riveters, Comdr. E. H. Norton, Lieut. Comdr. D. C. Laizure, Holder-on, Lieut. Comdr. R. R. Thompson, H. S. N.; Rivet Heater, C. E. Perkins, Rivet Passer, E. E. Pendergast.

The exercises were in charge of Chaplain Charlton and opened by a selection from the yard band. This was followed by three minutes of silent prayer and an address by the chaplain.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

If Your Trouble Is Scrofula

As Often Acquired as Inherited,

You have eruptions and sores, and perhaps enlarged glands of the neck. This blood disease affects the internal organs, especially the lungs, and if neglected may develop into consumption.

It causes many troubles, and is aggravated by impure air, bad water, too much heat or cold, and want of proper exercise.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the blood-purifying medicine that has been used with so much satisfaction by three generations, is wonderfully successful in the treatment of scrofula. Give it a trial.

If a cathartic or laxative is needed, take Hood's Pills.

If it is wired for electricity, with all the outlets needed for electrical appliances, and with at least the necessary electrical appliances, such as the washing machine, electric iron, vacuum cleaner and heating pad, then you may safely say it is "modern."

SYMPTOMS WOMEN DREAD

Mrs. Wilson's Letter Should Be Read by All Women

Clearfield, Pa.—"After my last child was born last September I was unable to do all of my own work. I had severe pains in my left side every month and had fever and sick dizzy spells and such pains during my periods, which lasted two weeks. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing others so much good and thought I would give it a trial. I have been very glad that I did, for now I feel much stronger and do all of my work. I tell my friends when they ask me what helped me, and they think it must be a grand medicine. And it is. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. HARRY A. WILSON, R. F. D. 6, Clearfield, Pa.

The experience and testimony of such women as Mrs. Wilson prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct such troubles by removing the cause and restoring the system to a healthy normal condition. When such symptoms develop as backaches, bearing-down pains, displacements, nervousness and "the blues" a woman cannot act too promptly in trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound if she values her future comfort and happiness.

ARRANGE FOR SALE OF THE CHRISTMAS SEALS

A meeting of the committee from this city who are to have charge of the sale of the Christmas seals for the tuberculosis fund, was held on Thursday afternoon at the Family Welfare Association rooms, with Mrs. Wallis D. Walker, the chairman, presiding. Miss Bancroft, the Rockingham county nurse who has charge of the tuberculosis cases in this county, was present and spoke of the work and the great need of funds to carry it on. It is through the sale of the Christmas seals at a penny each that they depend upon for the most of their funds and it is hoped that this year the sale will be greater than ever, with everybody using them on their mail, but especially on their Christmas packages.

Miss Bancroft mentioned that in the clinic held in this city, which is doing a splendid work, that out of the thirty cases examined, thirteen were found to be affected, and treatments suggested and follow up work will be continued. This is a high percentage, but it is due to the fact that the first fifty were of suspected cases and the percentage will hereafter be very much smaller.

The sale will begin on sale this year after the first of December at the following places: Allinson's, Greenleaf's, Hoyt & Dows, the Woman's Building, Y. W. C. A., Red Cross rooms, Beedham & Nighton, and at the postoffice corridor during Christmas week.

The following is the local committee—Mrs. W. D. Walker, chairman; D. Curtis Matthews, treasurer; Mrs. Harold M. Smith, Miss Martha Kimball, Mrs. Frank W. Randall, Miss Arthur H. Locke, Miss Priscilla Hefrenger, W. H. Slayton, Miss Edwine L. Patterson, Harry Caswell, H. D. Sherwood, R. D. McDonough, Miss Annie Berry, Mrs. Clyde Margeson, Mrs. Charles H. Amhoff, Mrs. Fred Hayes.

DOVER BOY KILLED WHILE OUT GUNNING

Daniel Maloney, aged 10, of Hanson street, Dover, was shot and instantly killed by William Spencer, aged 14, of the same street on Friday. They were gunning in a nearby field.

According to Young Spencer's statement to the county authorities, he was aiming his 22-calibre rifle to shoot when the Maloney boy stepped directly in range when he fired. The bullet entered the right breast just below the fourth rib. Spencer declared that the killing was accidental.

County Solicitor Burt R. Cooper after questioning Spencer and considering the available facts decided that the shooting was accidental and allowed him his liberty.

PAYS A FINE TRIBUTE TO THE UNKNOWN DEAD

A General Holiday For Everybody With a Total Suspension of All Work at Noon--Two Minutes of Silence Well Observed

Portsmouth paid tribute to the country's unknown dead on Armistice day, when in accordance with the proclamation of President Harding, all business was suspended all over the city and it became a general holiday. Only such stores as are very necessary were opened a few hours in the forenoon and all business was suspended for the two minutes in which the body of the unknown soldier was being lowered in his last resting place at Arlington National cemetery in the presence of President Harding and the greatest gathering of distinguished people this country had ever gathered to pay honor to any one.

All over the city everything stopped for the two minutes from 12 to 12.02. The trains on the Boston & Maine were brought to a standstill wherever they happened to be. The operators at the local telephone exchange dropped their instruments and stood at attention by their switchboard for the two minutes and the wires of the telegraph companies were silent, with the operators at attention.

About the city about everybody observed the two minutes. Automobiles came to a stop; people walking stopped when the whistle blew and remained at attention. In the clubs everybody stood and in the homes the observance was general. The majority of people gathered their children about them for these two sacred minutes. It was a splendid tribute and one that everybody felt they could take part in. The church bells were tolled from 11.45 to 12 and then came the stroke on the fire alarm calling the attention of the people to the time.

At the navy yard on the ships and in the barracks everybody came to a rigid attention for the required two minutes and the same held true at the forts. At the coast guard stations the men on duty were mustered for the two minutes.

FAREWELL DINNER TO MR. FRICK AT COUNTRY CLUB

Mr. H. E. Frick, general manager of the Atlantic shipyard, was tendered a farewell dinner at the Portsmouth Country club on Friday evening by twenty of his friends in the club. Chief Ben Tate served a splendid beef steak supper and President H. M. Randall presided, and speaking for the club, voiced the sentiment of the club members in their good wishes for Mr. Frick's future and a hope that he may come back to this city.

Ex-Mayor W. E. Marvin spoke of Mr Frick as a citizen and a neighbor; Im A. Newick, as a plant manager; J. Winslow Pierce and Dr. J. D. Carty, as a golf player; Alvin Redden, as a leader of men, and W. H. Shuttleworth of the Shipping Board as a ship builder.

Mr. Frick responded briefly, saying that it was with regret that he was leaving Portsmouth for in his eighteen months residence he had become very much attached to the city, and he would like nothing better than to make it his permanent home. He hoped to come back some time and the renew the very many fine friendships that he had made among the club members of the Portsmouth Country club and the citizens of the city.
